MURDER TRIAL STARTED HERE; JURY SEATED

Sanders Prepares To Fight for Life; 29 Prospective Jurors Dismissed.

TWO WOMEN IN PANEL

Seven Witnesses Called by Man Accused in Killing of DeCliff Grocer.

Charles Sanders, 29, colored, went on trail for his life in common pleas court today, charged with the first degree murder of Green G. Miller, aged DeCliff grocer, during an attempted holdup of his store last New Year's day.

Forty-one persons were called before the jury was satisfactory to Prosecutor R. M. Wilhelm, representing the state, and Frank Wiedemann, counsel for Sanders. Twenty-nine prospective jurors were dismissed, most of them because they did not believe in capital punishment.

Three hours were required to seat the jury, composed of 10 men and two women. Questioning of the jurors began at 9 a. m. and continued until 11:30 a. m. when court was adjourned for lunch. Twelve persons were tentatively seated at that time, after 28 prospective jurors had been questioned. By right of preemptory challenge, attorneys removed three from the jury, each attorney using all but two of the six preemptory challenges allowed him.

Daughter Dismissed

The eighth woman excused from jury service was Mrs. Anna Montgomery of Agosta, daughter of Green Miller, for whose death Sanders is on trial. Mrs. Bertha Kalb of Agosta, another woman questioned for jury service, was excused because her brother married a daughter of Miller.

George R. Bastian of Marion R. F. D. No. 1 was excused because he stated that he did not believe in conviction on circumstantial evidence, nor in confessions obtained by police officers. Glenn Heffelfinger of South Prospect street also said he would not find Sanders guilty on circumstantial evidence alone. He was excused.

All persons questioned for jury service were from a special panel of 50 jurors drawn for the trial.

Members of Jury

The jury seated for the trial is composed of John F. Leffler of 571 Delaware avenue, Sam D. Myers of near LaRue, Mrs. Vid Neff of near Martel, Charles Imbody of Agosta, T. C. Grossman of near Caledonia, O. E. Thomas of near Prospect, Miss Edna Stockwell of Prospect, Roy Epley of Marion R. F. D. No. 6, John A. Hiller of 505 Davids street, W. J. Schwaderer of near

WEST OHIO GAS CO. HEARING RESUMED

Engineer Questioned in Case Involving Lima and Kenton Rates.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 19 — The state utilities commission today resumed its hearing on a protest of both the city and the company in the West Ohio Gas company rate case for Lima and Kenton.

Today's hearing centered around the cross-examination of Harry R. Allensworth of Columbus, consulting engineer appointed by the city of Lima, on testimony given by Allensworth at previous hearings.

Attorneys for the gas company questioned Allensworth at length in regard to the manner in which he arrived at decisions in making evaluations of the company's property.

The commission, it was pointed out, had set an evaluation of $1,901,696.26 on the company's property in the protesting area, but Allensworth set the smaller figure of $1,888,091.61.

Allensworth explained his lower evaluation on the basis of his contention that the commission had included certain properties not actually used in the distribution of gas.

The question of the allocation of taxes for the company also was taken up as the hearing continued late this morning.

JUDGE DEFENDS "LASH" SENTENCE

By The Associated Press

MILLERSBURG, O., July 19— "Hard-boiled" methods of dealing with "thick-skinned" types of criminals, were defended today by Common Please Judge Robert B. Putnam, who recently sentenced two men to the whipping post.

"Some persons can be educated into respect for law, but others have to be jolted into it," said the Holmes county judge, adding, "If it takes a jolt, this court is prepared to jolt. I believe in doing something to meet the present crisis rather than allow things to drift."

Just two weeks ago, Judge Putnam gave James Wynn, 51, and William Wynn, 48, brothers, their

MAN HELD FOR SLAYING QUIZ

Warren Police Seek Clues of Missing Member of Ohio Bandit Trio.

WOMAN ALSO ARRESTED

Captured Gunman Tells Police Gang Killed New Falls Police Chief.

By The Associated Press

WARREN, O., July 19—New clues in the search for the only escaped member of a trio of robbers, accused of killing one policeman and wounding two others, were sought by authorities today in the questioning of Albert Hunter, 30, of Warren, a brother of one of the gunmen.

A police squad, armed with riot guns and tear gas bombs, and protected with steel vests, arrested Hunter last night, but encountered no resistance.

Albert Hunter's brother, Owen, was slain Sunday in a gun battle with three policemen who caught him and two other men robbing a filling station. Tony Retunno, 31, of Sharon, Pa., a second member of the gang, was captured later by a posse. The third member of the gang escaped.

Sergeant John Heinlein and Patrolman Walter Lundy were wounded in the fight, and Retunno subsequently admitted it was his gang which also shot and killed Police Chief Scott Vasbinder of Newton Falls July 5.

Retunno said the gangster who escaped was the one who killed Vasbinder, and that Owen Hunter was the one who wounded Heinlein and Lundy.

The captured gunman has a long record of crime in the vicinity of Sharon, Pa., and in eastern Ohio. A bond stolen from the Woolen Insurance agency office in Cortland, O., and a clip of machine gun bullets were found yesterday in a Cleveland rooming house where Retunno occasionally lived. A woman there was arrested for questioning. Police said she was an associate of the gang.

NOTIFICATION TO BE HELD NEXT MONTH

Hoover Not Decided on Definite Date for Party Ceremonies.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 19—Saying he had today discussed with the President plans for notifying him formally of his renomination, Representative Snell of New York, the minority leader in the house, disclosed the ceremonies would be held here between Aug. 8 and 15.

For "personal reasons," Snell said, Mr. Hoover has not decided on the exact date. Snell will head the notificiation committee.

The New York Republican said he considered it unfeasible for the chief executive to make a trip to California at this time. He was notified at his home there in 1928. Although due to open the Olympic games in Los Angeles during the last part of this month, Mr. Hoover himself has indicated he would not make the trip. He did not, however, close the door finally upon such plans.

Snell said that the coming notification would be staged either at the White House or in Constitutional hall, a large auditorium near the executive mansion.

BRUTAL DETAILS BARED

Fellow-Suspects of Victim Relate Details of Terrific Punishment.

By The Associated Press

MINEOLA, N. Y., July 19 — Thirteen policemen, stripped of their badges, waited today to see who would be charged with beating the life out of a 20-year-old prisoner in a torture third degree.

After hearing a story of police brutality that made spectators gasp, Supreme Court Justice Meier Steinbrink sought today to fix individual responsibility for the killing of Hyman Stark, who died of a fractured larynx Friday. Detectives at Nassau county headquarters had questioned him for eight hours about the robbing and beating of a detective's mother.

Steinbrink will give his findings tomorrow. Murder charges against some of the 13 suspended men were considered a possibility.

Identify Ten

Three fellow-suspects of Stark's picked eight detectives and two patrolmen who, they said, beat them with rubber hose, blackjacks, a heavy ledger and a shoe.

This followed sensational testimony by Assistant District Attorney Martin W. Littleton, Jr., directly implicating Deputy Chief Frank Tappan in the beating of Stark, a youth with a police record.

Littleton swore that Tappan came into the detectives' room on Friday, "looking very hot," mopping his brow and cursing about Stark.

Tappan flatly denied Littleton's statement.

The suspension of the 13 and the arrest of four policemen as material witnesses followed exposure by District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards of what he called a plot to have Detective Joseph Hizenski, son of the woman beaten in the robbery, "take the rap" for beating Stark.

Sees Escape for Hizenski

Edwards said the other detectives figured it would be easy for Hizenski to escape conviction by pleading he lost his head in rage over his mother's injuries.

Hizenski testified he "poked" the almost naked Stark twice.

One witness told of seeing Stark unconscious, his clothes half off and raw welts across his chest. A physician testified there were 50 such welts.

The suspensions left the county detective bureau sadly riddled, and newspapers predicted a shakeup would follow. Those suspended included a lieutenant, two sergeants, a deputy chief, five detectives and three patrolmen.

43 Prisoners Tax Capacity of County Jail

The county jail reached the overflowing point last night when the delivery of four prisoners from the city prison swelled the jail population to 43, the highest number since Sheriff C. C. Fye took office Jan. 1, 1931.

The jail has accommodations for approximately 30 persons. An unusually large number of persons fined in municipal court and sent to jail when unable to pay their fines, as well as a large number of prisoners awaiting action of the grand jury next September contributed to the unusual volume of business in "Hotel Fye."

City in New Heat Wave as Mercury Goes to 96

New Record for Year Is Set Here After Brief Respite Yesterday; Twelve More Die as Country Scorches.

The mercury soared to 96 in Marion at 2:30 p. m. today, setting a new high mark for the year, according to Dr. E. H. Raffensperger, local weather observer.

This reading is two degrees higher than the 94 recorded here for last Wednesday's high. The mercury was upward bound when today's reading was taken, and was expected to pass 97 this afternoon.

The heat wave enveloped the city with renewed intensity this morning, following a brief respite Monday when the Marion readings ranged between a high of 88 and a low of 67. A year ago the temperature varied between a high of 92 and a low of 68.

Twelve deaths in the United States yesterday were attributed to the heat, Associated Press dispatches say.

Warmer weather for most of the area east of the Rockies was forecast although some relief was in store for sections of the south and northwest.

Two heat drownings and a drowning at Alva, Okla., were the southwest's victims of a heat which reached a maximum of 110 degrees at Phoenix, Ariz., and touched 108 at Altus, Okla. Numerous communities in this region sizzled under temperatures of 100 degrees or more but thundershowers cooled Texas somewhat. Federal crop authorities said generous rains were needed in Kansas within the next week if the corn crop was to escape damage.

Iowa, Wisconsin, South Dakota and Nebraska likewise sweltered with the mercury around the 100 mark and reported five deaths. North Platte and Valentine in Nebraska had 100 degree heat.

Indiana and Kentucky also reported fatalities, those in the Blue Grass state where the weather was comparatively mild being by drowning.

Further east the weather was more seasonable with New York City enjoying a comfortable 81 and expecting about the same today.

Showers cooled scattered areas. The Pacific and Atlantic coasts were generally favored with seasonable weather.

TAKES STEP TO FREE CURTIS

Attorney Will Seek To Have Verdict of Jury Set Aside.

TO PROTEST PAYMENT

Charges Prosecutor Permitted Jurors To Be Followed by Detectives.

By The Associated Press

FLEMINGTON, N. J., July 19 — Lloyd Fisher, attorney, today announced he would apply immediately for an order to show cause why the verdict of guilty against John Hughes Curtis, who was convicted of hindering capture of the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, should not be set aside.

He said he would charge in his application that Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck had been guilty of contempt in permitting members of the jury to be followed by detectives.

Curtis, who was sentenced to a year in prison and a fine of $1,000, was released on bail yesterday pending appeal action.

Fisher, who was chief counsel for the defense at Curtis' trial, made his statement today before the Hunterdon county board of freeholders. He appeared before the freeholders as a private citizen to protest payment by the county of $184.30 to a private detective agency whose operatives, he said, shadowed the jurors during the trial.

Curtis Returns to Norfolk, Va.

By The Associated Press

NORFOLK, Va., July 19—Cheerful, but showing somewhat the effects of his confinement of two months in jail at Flemington, N. J., John Hughes Curtis arrived in Norfolk this morning to assist in raising funds for an appeal from his sentence of a year in jail and a fine of $1,000 for obstructing justice in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping-murder case.

Curtis was released on $10,000 bail, furnished by a surety company yesterday afternoon. The guarantee for the bond was arranged by eight Norfolk citizens and signed by Mrs. Curtis, wife of the Norfolk boat builder.

Mrs. Curtis has been at the greater part of the time since her husbands arrest on May 18 and had not seen him since he left Norfolk on May 7 with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Mrs. Curtis had been much cheered by the prospective release of husband on bail and is much improved in health.

WHITE OFFERS HIGHWAY AID

Proposes Use of Gas Tax To Help Pay Old Assessments on State Roads.

DECLARES DEBT IS JUST

Governor Will Place Proposal Before Special Legislature in September.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 19—Governor White will ask the next special session of the legislature to authorize the use of a portion of Ohio's gasoline tax receipts for payment of assessments on roads built before the state took over the highway system.

The governor, in a statement said such a plan not only would be permissible under the gasoline tax law, but would result in the payment of "a debt already contracted which we morally owe in connection with highway construction."

At present, under a system in force a number of years ago, many abutting property owners still are paying the assessments and Governor White said his proposal resulted from inquiries about an organization reported to have collected money to refund such payments.

"This problem," the chief executive said, "has been given serious attention, and I wish to say that it never will be necessary, so long as I am governor, for any citizen to give one cent to such an organization to obtain justice."

While not favoring general diversion of the gasoline tax "from its intended purpose" Governor White expressed the belief "the motorists themselves will agree that this is a just debt and that by avoiding it they are aggravating one of the most serious economic problems."

He said he would draft a bill authorizing "the application of whatever can be saved from the highway fund by increased efficiency and curtailment of the less essential operations to the reduction of these assessments for 1932 and the succeeding years."

The governor has announced he will call the special session early in September.

"WHAT A MAN" SOON BECOMES TOO MUCH

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Calif., July 19— Her divorce complaint filed in the county clerk's office, Mrs. Minnie (Mae) Kennedy Hudson, mother of evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, looked back today regretfully on her life with Guy Edward Hudson, whom she once described as "what a man."

"If I'd only married 'what-a-man' sooner I might have had a chance to prevent him from becoming 'what-a-flop,'" said Mrs. Hudson. They married a year ago.

The complaint of the evangelist's mother charges Hudson with excessive drinking, mental cruelty and abusive profanity. It asserts Hudson owes his wife $4,540, of which $4,240 was loaned him on promissory notes and the remaining $300 in cash. Mrs. Hudson said she now was "broke."

BUSINESS WILL GET 2 BILLION

Hoover and Rainey Still at Odds Over Making Public Loan Details.

14 STATES SEEK LOANS

No Definite Plans Made To Reorganize Directorate of Finance Corporation.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 19 — A piece of parchment promising two billion dollars worth of stimulation for business today moved toward the musty vault that houses the laws of the land.

The President's signature is the last necessary step before the bill becomes law. After a two-day stay at the Virginia mountain camp, Mr. Hoover had arranged to arise just after daybreak so he could be in Washington for the usual cabinet meeting and to sign the $2,122,000,000 relief bill.

There were some features of the relief effort that President Hoover found objectionable, but in his own words "they are not so great as to warrant refusal to approve the measure in the face of the great service that the major provisions will be to the nation."

As the time came for executive approval, the President and Representative Rainey of Illinois, house Democratic leader, still were at odds over whether it would be necessary to make public details of all loans by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Emphatic in Their Views

Mr. Hoover said no, holding they could be given to the senate and house in confidence. Mr. Rainey said yes, insisting that if senate and house clerks did not give them out they would be called "on the carpet when congress convenes again."

The Reconstruction Corporation, to which the measure gives an available capital of $3,800,000,000 instead of a mere $2,000,000,000, was ready to carry out the provisions of the measure.

Already the corporation had heard that 14 states intended to seek loans from the $300,000,000 fund established for direct relief of destitution. From at least two Pennsylvania and Illinois came reports they would ask the max...

Extra Guards on Duty as Hoover Returns

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 19—President Hoover returned to a White House guarded by an extra detail of police today after spending two days at his Rapidan camp in the Virginia mountains.

Arising shortly after daybreak, the President left his camp about 6 a. m.

The trip back was uneventful. For the first time in the recent history of his journeys to the camp he was picked up by an escort of motorcycle police as he crossed the Arlington Memorial bridge and guarded closely en route to the White House. Extra police patrolled all sides of the executive mansion as he reached it, entering by a side door. The guard was stationed as a precaution against possible demonstrations by bonus-seeking veterans.

Mrs. Hoover, who went to the Rapidan camp more than a week ago, remained there. He was accompanied on the return trip only by Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sullivan, the only guests at the camp.

Mata Hari, Famous Spy of War, Sought To Bargain for Life

By International News Service

PARIS—Mata Hari nearly succeeded in saving her life in exchange for information concerning her method of liaison with enemy headquarters.

This is revealed by Commandant Ladoux, chief of the French espionage and counter-espionage from 1914 to 1917, in his new book "Spy Hunters."

Describing how the legendary enemy dancer and spy was arrested, Commandant Ladoux tells that he received an urgent summons to visit her in prison shortly before sentence was passed.

"She asked me, 'will I be condemned?' he writes. "I answered, 'certainly.'

" 'Will I be shot?'

" 'I can not tell you,' I replied. And added, 'I see only one way in which you may be saved. Tell me the truth about your methods of communication with the Germans and I will do my best to save you.'

"She agreed provided I promised she would be saved," relates Commandant Ladoux. "Having no power to do that I went immediately to see the judge and explained that the information might prove invaluable."

"But he refused to reconsider his verdict and ordered her brought into court, where sentence of death was passed. She said outrageously: 'C'est bien' take me back to prison. I will say nothing.' "

Commandant Ladoux writes that he procured definite proof of guilt against Mata Hari only after she had professedly entered the French secret service.

"She expressed her willingness to return to the Crown Prince in order to help France," the Commandant writes. "I sent her through Spain but she was arrested on the sea by an English cruiser and returned to Madrid.

"Having caused all radio messages from Madrid to be intercepted, I soon held copies of messages from her to German general headquarters and their replies to her. When she came to Paris I caused her to be arrested."

CORN COBS VALUABLE

WASHINGTON — Four valuable chemical substances have been secured from corn cobs as a result of experiments conducted by the department of agriculture. Laboratory tests reveal that the corn cob yields oil which can be converted into vanillin, anisic acid, a constituent of the volatile oil used in anise preparations; guaiacol, a medicinal antiseptic, and catacnol, used as a basic material in the preparation of synthetic adrenalin.

THESE PRICES PROVE

you don't have to buy low quality tire

to get LOW PRICE

HERE'S something to think about if you want the biggest money's worth of comfort, safety and trouble-free mileage when you buy tires.

You don't have to buy low quality tires to get low price.

You don't have to take second-choice tires to save money — because FIRST-CHOICE costs no more.

Here are prices that prove it. Read them and remember, they buy real Goodyears. Big, stout, husky, tough Supertwist balloons with the name Goodyear Speedway on the sidewall, and Goodyear materials through and through.

For 17 years, motorists have voted Goodyear Tires the best on the market—because they have bought more Goodyear Tires than any other kind. Because Goodyear makes millions more tires than any other rubber manufacturer, it stands to reason Goodyear can build them better and better.

Take another look at the prices here, and ask yourself: Why buy any second-choice tire when FIRST-CHOICE costs no more!

LUMBERMEN TURN GARDENERS IN WEST

Meet Employment Problem by Raising Food on Co-operative Basis.

By International News Service

PORTLAND, Ore.—A dramatic story of community cooperation that overnight changed the largest spruce lumber camp in the world to an enthusiastic farming community is wrapped up in the efforts of Toledo, Ore., citizens to meet the present economic emergency.

This big spruce camp was started during the World war by the United States government to supply wood for airplane construction. It was later sold to the present owners who normally employed 1,000 men. Their dependents make up a camp of more than 3,000 persons.

Recently the bottom dropped out of the spruce market and Toledo citizens, faced with a crisis, called a mass meeting. A plan labelled "Co-operative Community Gardening' was adopted.

Mill owners, business, lumbermen and their wives got behind the movement and now 15 acres of land, divided into individual garden plots, 40 by 100 feet, are under cultivation.

The company leased the land, paid the expense of preparing and fertilling and advanced money for seed. Idle machinery has been put into use to pump water. An elaborate sprinkling system has been constructed by the workers.

The plan was no more than under way when a Jersey cow was offered for a prize for the best community garden. Other prizes followed.

A program has been worked out whereby the women will be instructed in canning schools to preserve the surplus of their crops for winter consumption.

MERKEL TELLS OF TRIP WITH CIRCUS

A talk on circus life based on his experiences as a guest for two days of Rex De Rossetti, manager of the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, was given by Charles F. Merkel at a meeting of the Y's Men's club last night.

Living conditions of the performers, the work necessary to stage a circus performance, and a description of back-stage circus life were discussed by Merkel.

CARDS PREDICT DEATH

George A. Carl, Chicago grocer, at bottom right, was found shot to death after his death had been foretold 60 hours previously in the fortune teller's cards, shown at top. Carl laughed when his wife, Vera, at lower left, told him about the warning. On the day of the slaying Mrs. Carl is said to have told their 9-year-old son, Dorn, center, "your father is going to be shot in a robbery tonight!"

Musicians, Lecturer on Chautauqua Program Here

T. DINSMORE UPTON

An ensemble of talented musicians composing the Cathedral Trumpeters, will provide an afternoon of music on Monday's program of the Chautauqua which will open Sunday at the Chautauqua pavilion. The group also will play for an hour preceding the lecture, "The Four-Square Builder" to be given Monday night by T. Dinsmore Upton.

The Trumpeters are headed by Ruth Ross, trumpet player, who is known on the air as the "girl baritone." She recently completed a 10-month stage presentation. Lucille Landrey Miners is trombone soloist with the ensemble and is known especially for her fine work with the Chicago Women's symphony. Margaret Knox has toured with success both the United States and Canada and Irene Tuller, the fourth member of the brass quartet, has been selected for her fine playing in ensemble numbers.

The musical program will include such majestic airs as "Triumphal March" from "Aida," "Pilgrims' Chorus" from "Tannhauser" and excerpts from such overtures as "Jolly Robbers," "Light Cavalry" and "William Tell." Favorite hymns including "Onward Christian Soldiers," "Rock of Ages" and others, will complete the early part of the program. A military revue will be presented for the second half of the entertainment.

Completing Monday's program will be Captain T. Dinsmore Upton who is known throughout two continents for his work with boys and girls. His lectures are practical, constructive contributions in this vital and important field.

Captain Upton's theories are built on years of practical experience and investigation upon the business of character building. Playgrounds founded from coast to coast in two nations are a monument to his work and community houses in 20 towns testify to his ability.

He is a dynamic speaker and his lectures appeal to everyone in his audiences, to the boys and girls themselves and to the adults who have the interests of the boys and girls at heart. His lectures combine contagious enthusiasm and sincere earnestness.

TWO MORE CHAPLINS BID FOR FAME

CHARLIE CHAPLIN — CHARLES JR. and SYDNEY CHAPLIN — LITA GREY CHAPLIN

By International News Service
NEW YORK — It has long been a controversial subject as to whether genius, like lightning, ever strikes twice in the same place, that is, in the same family. With the exercise of a little patience, we are likely to have the matter settled in the very near future when the children of Charlie Chaplin, the world's most famous screen clown, make their debut before the movie camera.

The boys, Charles, Jr., 7, and Sidney Earle, 6, recently returned from Europe to start work on a two-year contract calling for five pictures, in which they will play with their mother, Lita Grey Chaplin, former wife of the comedian, who has been appearing on vaudeville stages for several years.

Dad Not Enthusiatic

It is said that Papa Charlie is not any too well pleased at the idea of his progeny following in his splayed footsteps and it has been hinted in some quarters that the funny man may attempt to place a legal obstacle in the way of his children's film career. This sudden interest in his children would be rather inconsistent with Charlie's previous attitude towards them. For, according to their mother, the comedian has not paid the slightest attention to the boys since the court placed them in her custody and assessed Charlie $850,000 for their upkeep.

However, the funny man will, no doubt, be relieved to learn that the young Chaplins will make no attempt to mimic their famous dad on the screen. According to their mother, the boys will choose their own path on the rugged climb to fame in Hollywood. And she hopes they'll make the grade without trick lip spinach or baggy pants.

Prefer Punch and Judy

The two potential stars who hope to win a place in the Hollywood firmament are not greatly impressed with the laurels won by their famous sire, both being unanimous in declaring their preference for Punch and Judy shows, which, they say, are much funnier.

Though the boys know they are destined for a movie career, they are still too young to have any definite ambitions in that direction. In fact, they are still trying to decide whether a policeman or a fireman has the better time. However, their mother is sure that they will take to acting like a duck takes to water, especially Sidney, who, incidentally, is Tommy to his mother.

Different Types

Sidney is a natural-born comedian and delights in strutting his stuff on every possible occasion, so it is to him that we must look if we expect to see the Great Charlie outshown by one of his own children. Charles, Jr., is a quiet child, remarkably studious for his years, whose chief amusement is reading. It would be strange indeed if he were to succeed where his famous father has always failed. That is in attaining success in serious dramatic roles.

It is well known that Chaplin's greatest ambition was to break away from the clowning that made him famous and to play in drama and tragedy. It was said at one time that he had his heart set on playing Hamlet, but such proposals were always greeted with a big laugh as one vainly tried to imagine the bowler-hatted, voluminous-trousered comedian in the tragic role of the melancholic Prince of Denmark.

Hollywood Guessing

Hollywood is now speculating as to what Chaplin's course of action will be, if any, in regard to his children's entrance to the field that brought him world renown. It is believed that any attempt on his part to have his progeny barred from the land of klieg will be fought tooth and nail by his former wife. And that she will use Charlie's alleged distinterestedness in their welfare since the divorce as a telling court argument.

This indifference on Chaplin's part is difficult to understand, especially when we remember that Chaplin was the man that made "The Kid," a picture that portrayed the comedian as a child-lover par-excellence.

Confirms Offer of "Scarface Al" To Buy Ranch

By The Associated Press
PONCA CITY, Okla., July 19—When Al Capone completes his sentence in the Atlanta federal prison, he may become overlord of Oklahoma's famed 17,000 acre 101 ranch.

Col. Zack Miller, last of the pioneer family which built the vast ranch into a western show place and virtually a dominion unto itself, today confirmed reports negotiations were in progress for sale of the property to the former Chicago gang leader, his brother, Ralph, and associates.

Miller said he planned to leave for the south tomorrow but declined to say whether the purpose of the trip was to confer with Capone. Two Pawhuska, Okla., real estate dealers, E. E. Beech and Horace J. Smith, said Miller would accompany Louis (Diamond Jack) Alterie, Capone representative, to Atlanta to hear Capone's offer.

Miller, beset by financial difficulties which started when the ranch's wild west show became stranded in Washington, D. C., last season, added that he had "no idea" the transaction with Capone would be completed. He said another deal for sale of the ranch, now in receivership, was "more likely" to be made. He declined to give details.

Smith said "the Capone boys are quitting the racket and are going to retire to active management of the ranch if the deal goes through."

STRIKE PUTS 6,000 MEN OUT OF WORK

By The Associated Press
HIGH POINT, N. C., July 19—All manufacturing plants in High Point except two or three were closed today, throwing approximately 6,000 men out of work, as a strike spread from a walkout of hosiery workers here yesterday. It was estimated 100 plants were idle.

The strike began yesterday when 400 hosiery workers walked out in protest against a wage readjustment.

This number had grown to 3,000 last night and this morning another 3,000 joined the idle with the closing of numerous textile and furniture manufacturing plants.

High Point is the largest furniture manufacturing center in the south.

CARD DEATH CLUES SOUGHT IN GUN TEST

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, July 19—The police rested in ballistic tests today their hope for a solution of the killing of George Carl, whose widow said she read in the cards his approaching death.

A seance with the neighborhood seeress who presided over the card session at which the augury of death was read had been proposed by the police today, but Capt. John Ptacek forbade it. Such a procedure, he said, would make the police seem ridiculous and would be of little value in solving the crime.

Ballistic tests of the .38 calibre pistol found in the Carl home were ordered to determine whether it was the weapon that killed Carl.

Democratic Candidate Confers with Advisors at Albany Luncheon.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 19—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt took active command today of his campaign as the Democratic presidential nominee.

In Albany for luncheon with the candidate, James A. Farley, national chairman, and Louis H Howe, Mr. Roosevelts political adviser, brought reports of their accomplishments during the governors brief vacation.

Because of the pressure of state business, the luncheon hour was the only time Mr. Roosevelt could find for the campaign conference.

Mr. Roosevelt arrived in Albany last night, after an all-day motor trip from Rye Beach, N. H. There were conferences along the way with Colonel Edward M. House, war time adviser to President Wilson, and Leopold M. Goulston, a close advisor of Governor Ely of Massachusetts.

He arrived in time to entertain at dinner Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier.

INCOME CUT

Red Tape Stripped from Construction of Seaway

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, July 19 — The great St. Lawrence seaway is to be constructed under the supervision of a sort of super government commission and on a strictly business basis.

The ponderous name of the organization, specified in the treaty signed yesterday between the United States and Canada, is the St. Lawrence International Rapids Section commission.

Its work on the $543,000,000 project will be just as ponderous as its name but the plan is to let it be as free from governmental red tape as the ordinary contractor.

Five members are to be appointed by each country as soon as the treaty is ratified by the United States senate and the Canadian parliament.

Because of subsequent necessary delay in obtaining appropriations, work of course, can not begin until some time after that. But the 10 men named to the commission will have ample authority to push the project for a 25-foot channel from Montreal to Lake Ontario.

They will have authority to make contracts, sue and be sued, and employ all the help they need. They will see that wages paid workers equal those prevalent in the community.

To show that they mean these commissioners to do business the two governments have agreed.

To waive immigration laws so far as they otherwise would affect those in the employ of the commission.

To exempt from all tariffs and customs and taxes supplies bought by the commission in either country.

To keep the commission free, generally, from legislative or executive direction.

To make the commission subject to the federal courts of the countries in which suits originate with the proviso that if any claim exceeds $50,000 either government may appeal it to arbitration.

COAL MINERS VOTE TO CONTINUE STRIKE

State Decides To Close Last of 800 Soup Kitchens in District.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., July 19 Despite the state's decision to close its 135 remaining soup kitchens in the coal strike region, the suspension of work will go on, officials of the United Mine Workers leading the strike said today.

Although the state will be compelled to close its feeding station because of lack of funds, officials of the miners union at a meeting in Zanesville yesterday, voted to continue the strike.

During the last six months the state has been feeding children in the strike region with funds received from the round robin Big Ten football games held last fall for the benefit of charity. These funds, $25,000, have been exhausted, state officials said. Some 800 soup kitchens, providing two meals a day had been in operation until recently when the state cut their number to 135.

County authorities, state officials said, will have to assume the responsibility of feeding the needy. They may obtain funds, these officials said, under provisions of the law passed by the last session of the assembly which allows them to divert monies from the gasoline tax for direct relief work.

PICK JURY TO HEAR TRIAL OF SANDERS

Caledonia, Mrs. C. J. Altmaier of Marion, James R. Smith of Mt Vernon avenue. Smith, the last to be seated, took his seat at 1:40 p. m.

Prosecutor Wilhelm made the opening statement, declaring that he expected the testimony to show that Sanders was a co-conspirator with William Carter, 18, colored, who is charged with firing the revolver shots that killed Miller during the attempted holdup. He asserted that Sanders, if proven a co-conspirator, was equally guilty with Carter. Attorney Wiedemann stated that witnesses for the defense would show that Sanders was in Columbus at the time of the crime.

Taken to Scene

The jury was taken by bus to DeCliff to view the grocery in which Miller was killed. It appeared that testimony of witnesses would not begin until late this afternoon or until Wednesday morning.

The gallery of the courtroom was filled with spectators during both morning and afternoon sessions of the trial.

When Sanders walked into the courtroom this morning in custody of Deputy Sheriff Cosgrove, his attire was in contrast to the overalls and rough clothing he was wearing when he was arrested in Newark last January after an attempted grocery holdup there.

He wore today a dark coat, light trousers, white shirt, red cravat, and a lace-bordered yellow handkerchief was visible in the breast pocket of his coat.

Calls Eight Witnesses

Eight Columbus witnesses have been subpoenaed for Sanders, presumably to substantiate his alibi that he was in Columbus when the crime was committed.

Prosecutor R. M. Wilhelm has subpoenaed 13 witnesses.

There had been no definite word about reorganization of the corporations directorate, as provided in the bill which called for retirement of Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve, and Paul Bestor, farm loan commissioner. The vacancies must be filled by Presidential appointment.

Ready for Loan Applications

The corporation also was ready to consider applications from states and municipalities for loans with which to build public works and toll bridges and from corporations for money to be used in building homes.

Despite the increased business, a general reorganization was not immediately contemplated.

While the bill awaited presidential approval, Secretary Doak let it be known that the five-day week, six-hour day already is being enforced on some federal construction works and soon may be general.

The new relief measure specifies that the hours of labor on all public buildings outside the District of Columbia shall be only 30 a week. Administrative and supervisory positions are exempted.

Preference on the new works is to be given to veterans, with direct convict labor barred.

Uvalde's reception was informal. There were no speeches. The town band played, the fire whistle blew and Speaker and Mrs. Garner shook hands with the friends they had not seen for months.

Garner said he would rest here four or five weeks, then visit Governor Franklin D Roosevelt, the Democartic candidate for president. After that Garner anticipates an active season of campaigning.

Guarantee of Good Faith.

President Hoover, voluntarily reducing his salary from $75,000 to $60,000 a year, earns the praise which has been awarded other public officials generous enough to forego the protection provided for them by law. The Constitution forbids congress to increase or decrease a President's compensation during the term for which he was elected, so that the reduction authorized by the new economy law will not apply until March 4. Under the furlough provision applying to the entire federal payroll the reduction would be only 8 1-3 per cent.

The economy law, however, provides for the voluntary return of a portion of salaries paid to the President and his cabinet. In addition to cutting his own salary, Mr. Hoover has ordered reductions of cabinet salaries a flat 15 per cent. It is a guarantee of good faith to the country that the man who has been preaching economy is willing to practice it so far as it lies within his power to do so.

It may be pointed out, of course, that political expediency allowed no other course of action. It is a contention true only in part: many public officials similarly protected from salary reductions have ignored opportunities to make voluntary rebates, preferring to take the dollar at hand rather than the gratitude of their constituents. Mr. Hoover and members of his cabinet are not paid generously; had they not chosen to open the subject of salaries there would have been no general discussion of it.

Sales Taxer Coolidge.

When sales taxation comes up for discussion in the next session of congress, and it undoubtedly will, conversion of former President Coolidge to the principle will be cited. His support of the tax, together with that of President Hoover, will be a strong point in the argument for its adoption if the present collapse of the income tax continues.

In an article published in Collier's Weekly explaining his change of attitude Mr. Coolidge points to two possible results if the present policy of expropriation affecting large incomes is continued and expanded. They are the jokers in the theory that taxation should be founded on ability to pay.

A persistent attempt to redistribute wealth by the government's power of taxation would stifle enterprise, he claims. It is a fact all too infrequently recognized that punitive taxation schemes are planned without attention to effects.

It is the second result described by Mr. Coolidge, however, which should hold the attention of thoughtful Americans. To force a small group to contribute a disproportionate share of the income of government is to give that group a proprietary interest in operation of the government. It is a grave threat to the whole structure of American democracy, says Mr. Coolidge.

The present taxation situation constitutes an emergency, in which, according to Mr. Coolidge, excessively high taxation is permissible as a temporary policy. Significantly, high rates on income are not productive enough to meet the government's needs; under the name of specialized excise taxation recourse has been had to the general principles of sales taxation. Within the next few years Americans will have to decide on a permanent policy. Is the government to be supported financially by all its citizens directly, or are a few of them to be established as publicans in the mistaken theory that the general welfare is taken care of better by such an un-American scheme?

Safe for Democracy.

The Atlantic ocean does not hide from Americans the returning fondness for monarchy in the nation they fought "to make the world safe for democracy." What a boon it would be to man's good opinion of himself if slogans of the past could not arise to shame and plague him in the present.

Under the Von Papen government Germans are admitting overtly their starved enthusiasm for remaining figures of the monarchial group which led them to the pinnacle of national glory—and hurled them into the abyss of ruin. But the conclusion was an error unpremeditated. Accounting has been made; now it can be forgotten.

It is rumored that the former kaiser may return at last, to live in Coburg, a city controlled by the Hitlerites—vigorous proponents of absolutism. Americans have seen within recent weeks a newsreel showing the former crown prince reviewing members of the Steel Helmet federation of German veterans. In his welcoming address the chief of the division reviewed said that "the future German state will be one ruled by a German emperor."

From many sources come descriptions of wild enthusiasm when the crown prince appears in public. They tally well with what Americans have been reading the last year of the rise of the Hitler party. It is a brutal repudiation of democracy, but there is little in the German record of experiment with popular government to warrant anything else. Now that the passions of war have been forgotten, it is not difficult to understand why an increasing number of Germans are reviving faith in a form of gov-

Prohibition Episode.

The hotter the weather the more pleasant the beer. Chicago's beer strike, now ended, was a calamity to be compared with a clerk strike the day before Christmas. The strikers had picked the right time to do the most damage.

They calculated without their employers, however. Busy men in the beer business don't have time to argue and conciliate. When the strike began to choke off the supply the bosses had a meeting. Major domo was a muscular fellow known as "Mussolini."

"Mussolini" handled the strikers with a whip. To make a fair show guards stood by with drawn revolvers, ready to bear a hand in case some one might attempt to fight back. An adjustment was made speedily, the next day the strikers were back on the job.

They were kept busy, as their bosses knew they would be, handling beer sold to the trade for $55 a barrel. Their pay seemed insignificant in comparison. $100 for truck drivers and $75 for barrel wrestlers. Before the strike it was $125 for drivers and $75 for assistants.

On the customer side of Chicago's many bars the strike didn't matter much. Thirsty patrons knew about it, talked about prohibition and the unnatural opportunities it gave to criminal types to gain power through control of money, but they couldn't be bothered with worrying about hoodlums who drove trucks and rolled kegs for wages that would represent a month's salary for some of them. Neither could they be concerned with the so-called beer barons, powerful enough to bring their recalcitrant employes to time with a whip. They were interested in beer, not reform.

Attempting the Impossible.

There is no American citizen of good mentality and normal interests who is not interested in making business better. Economic revival is the topic of the times.

Citizens of all nations have the same devotion to it that Americans have. No possible method but has been discussed exhaustively. Because the problems entailed are universal, interest is international.

The Democratic platform, which called for an international conference to deal with economic revival and substantiated President Hoover's oft-repeated statement that the depression is worldwide and therefore is not the responsibility of either major political party in the United States, is evidence enough that Americans conceive of recovery as a world process. They will have an opportunity to watch an attempt to get the process under way this week.

They will read about representatives of one-fourth of the world's population, convened in Ottawa, Canada, for the imperial economic conference of the British commonwealth. They will see an attempt to transform hope for better business conditions into action to bring about those conditions. They will be able to observe, on a small scale, the possibilities of general cooperation in a group representing widely diverse interests and nationalities.

Significantly, forecasters have been glum about the prospects of success. The reason is plainly evident. The London correspondent of the New York Times stated it succinctly recently when he said: "As to policy, that may be stated briefly for each country of the empire as follows: 'Canada first'; 'Australia first'; 'New Zealand first'; 'South Africa first'; 'Great Britain first'; 'Ireland a little more first than all the rest.'" The fact is that the British commonwealth's tie has come to consist chiefly of allegiance to the King; there is no love lost among its component business communities. For this reason it may be said that the Ottawa conference will reveal with dependable accuracy the obstacles in the way of international cooperation. When every one has an ax to grind no one is willing to turn the grindstone.

Comment of the Press

PRICE LEVELS AND PROSPERITY.

Economists assert that an upward trend in business will be heralded by, and contingent upon, a general rise in commodity prices. There is no doubt that uncertainty and apprehension concerning prices have caused hosts of potential consumers of goods and investors in securities to refrain from purchasing. Stabilization of prices, with even a slight upward trend, stimulates consumption and investment.

How are prices to be raised without the employment of dangerous artificial measures, such as currency inflation? The answer of the economist is clear—by increasing the demand for the goods whose prices have fallen below the possibility of moderate profit, if not below the cost of production. Demand, again, is increased by attractive prices, or by prices within the reach of large elements of the population that have to practice self-denial under a regime of high prices.

Illustrations of those propositions are afforded by recent developments in the live-stock industry and in other branches of agriculture. The market prices of hogs and cattle have been rising steadily for several weeks. In five states in the Mississippi valley, the farmers have gained nearly $200,000,000 since the end of May through the advance of hog and cattle prices.

The dairy industry has benefited similarly, the prices of butter having shown marked improvement. Cotton is responding to the same upward trend. The low prices of those commodities for over two years brought hosts of consumers back into the market. Families that had ceased to buy beef, bacon, pork and butter resumed their purchases. The additional demand has had its effect on prices.

Advance in prices stimulates production and even overproduction. Consequently prices soon decline again. That is the familiar business cycle in any particular field. For the present, however, it is gratifying to feel that agriculture has fresh proof that its future is secure. Whatever aids agriculture helps industry generally.—Chicago Daily News.

PROFESSOR VS. WARDEN.

Robert Warren, economist, tells the Virginia Institute of Public Affairs that gangsters have withdrawn five hundred million dollars from circulation since Al Capone was arrested for income tax evasion and that this enormous sum of money is hoarded, much of it in one thousand dollar bills. Mr. Warren should tell the public further how he assembles his statistics.

Certainly the gangsters who fear to bank their money where secret service auditors may check up on their deposits and balances, are not confiding in college professors the amounts they have stowed away in strong boxes. They have good reason for a tight-lipped attitude, for reticence concerning profits of illegitimate business, but it is doubtless true that some of them have secret hoards of large amounts. They may make crime profitable, but for a short time only. For evidence supporting that assertion listen to Warden Brophy of Auburn: "Criminals are cheap failures; for the most part unintelligent. Even most of the big shots are captured without money enough in their pockets to buy cigarets."

Warden Brophy has long been in position to obtain definite information. It is more convincing than Professor Warren's theorizing and estimating of underworld fortunes in round hundreds of mil-

Long Life Possible for Child with Diabetes.

Children as well as adults may suffer from diabetes. As in the adult, the body of the afflicted child is unable to deal properly with the sugars and starches of the diet, and the excess sugar accumulates in the body.

In former years diabetes in childhood was almost always fatal, but I am glad to say that conditions have improved amazingly. As a result of the discovery of insulin, and with a careful prescribed diet, a child with this disease may grow to normal adult life.

Because the disease is not expected to develop in children, it is often overlooked. It should always be suspected if a child drinks an unusual amount of water and urinates frequently and copiously, for these are characteristics of children with diabetes. They have excellent appetites also, yet lose weight. If these signs are present the child should be taken to a physician for examination, and a test made for sugar.

If diabetes is found, the child's diet should be regulated by the family doctor, and if sugar continues after a strict diet has been followed, it will be necessary to use insulin.

Children with diabetes usually are bright and quickly realize the importance of the treatment when the disease is explained to them. They readily understand the necessity for strict diet, and they require the same food as diabetic adults.

These little patients should be taught to eat slowly and chew their food carefully, and it is best for them to rest before and after meals. If insulin is given, the child should rest after it is given, before eating.

A definite schedule should be arranged for each day, for diabetic children who are taught habit and routine overcome many of the handicaps of this disease. School work should be encouraged, but never forced.

Not all cases of diabetes require insulin—only those where sugar persists in spite of rigid diet. Great benefit is derived from insulin when properly used.

The amount of insulin given at the beginning of treatment is gradually decreased, so that eventually the child receives a minimum amount. Never give insulin unless directed to do so by a physician. Insulin, which lowers the amount of sugar in the blood, should be followed by food to prevent the so-called "insulin reaction" that occurs when the sugar suddenly drops low.

Many a parent becomes unduly alarmed when informed that a child has diabetes. Under proper care the diabetic child need not be considered diseased. While the diabetic child can not eat like a normal child, his activities, growth and development need not be handicapped.

Glimpses of the Past

TEN YEARS AGO.

It was Wednesday, July 19, 1922.

A report from the department of labor in Washington showed that the cost of living was on the increase. Wholesale prices for June registered one and one-third per cent above May, and in May the increase had been three and one-half per cent over April. The largest gains were reported for fuel and building material.

The list of young men from Marion and vicinity who were to leave Aug. 1 for Citizens' military training camp at Camp Knox, Ky., was announced as follows: Faydell Welch of 145 Olney avenue, Marion; Elmer B. Hall, Donald W. Boyer and Edward R Pfleiderer of Bucyrus; Kenneth Hoyt Brease, John D. Caris, Otis O. Crawford, Kenneth Barr Graham, Ellison Kaufman, Joseph Kidwell, Clifford Krout and Elza Lancaster of Mt. Gilead; George E. Feicheisen of Galion; Walter H. Theile, John R. Zachardy of Upper Sandusky; Jesse M. Swartz of Harpster.

Mrs. J. W. Myers and Mrs. Herman Mautz were hostesses to members of the Farm Women's club of Pleasant township at the home of Mrs. Mautz on the Delaware pike.

Mrs. C. W. McClain, Mrs. C. C. Fisher, Mrs. Frank H. Keiler, Mrs. J. A. Dodd and Mrs. A. O'Hara were hostesses at a bridge-luncheon given at the Marion country club.

Mrs. Harrison Andrews entertained members of the Powhatan club at her home on South High street.

Paramount council, Daughters of America, installed new officers headed by Mrs. Walter Carder as councilor.

Because of the large field of starters in the 2:17 pace, feature event of the third day's program of Marion's Little Grand Circuit races, the purse was split, El Verso winning the $500 for the first division and Harry Volo the second division.

K. O. Jeakle, Toledo boxer, knocked out Ty Murray of Bucyrus in the fourth round of what was scheduled to be a 12-round main go of the Marion Athletic club's first open air show at Lincoln park.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Friday, July 19, 1912.

A score of persons lost their lives when a cloudburst wiped out the mining camp of Mazuma near Reno, Nev., and badly damaged the village of Seven Troughs.

A complete exposure of police graft was promised by county officials as a result of the assassination of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, who had disclosed the system used by the police in levying tribute on gamblers. It was announced that Detective William J. Barnes had been assigned to the case.

Mrs. Anna Ireland died at her home on North Main street after an illness of nine days.

A company of Marion young people held a picnic at Berringer's Grove near Marion as a courtesy to Miss Lorena Howell of Dayton, who was visiting Miss Geraldine Hord.

Mrs. Frank Maass entertained at a 6 o'clock dinner at her home on East Church street in honor of Mrs. A. A. Booth of Columbus, who was visiting her.

Members of the Kermoth club were entertained by Mrs. Jay Lewis at her home on North Prospect street.

Miss Ruth Emery was hostess to members of the B. O. E. club at the home of her aunt, Mrs. John Weber, on Cherry street.

New officers installed by the Protected Home Circle were headed by Harry Rice as president.

It was announced that 71 tents had been erected on Marion Chautauqua grounds and that 65 of these were occupied by camping parties that had arranged to spend the week at the Chautauqua grounds. The first program was set for Saturday.

It was announced that preliminary plans for Marion's annual "Bill" picnic had been made at a meeting of a committee held in Strayer's drug store. The picnic, to be held Labor Day at the fairground, was to be featured by a program in which all participants were to be citizens answering to the name of Bill.

Highlights of Ohio History
BY J. H. GALBRAITH

NAPOLEON AND OHIO.

When the French colony that was to locate at Gallipolis was being formed, Napoleon Bonaparte, just out of military school, was a second lieutenant in the French army and had given no hint of the genius within him. At this period, according to a story written by W. G. Sibley of Gallipolis, he contemplated casting his fortunes with the new nation in America.

Napoleon had a chum in military school, Francis D'Hebecourt, then also a lieutenant, with whom he talked about America and they decided to come over. When Napoleon mentioned the matter to his family, however, they opposed it strenuously, and he changed his mind. His friend, however, did join the colony and was the first postmaster at Gallipolis.

While Napoleon never came to America, remaining in the French army to go on to the fame that has made him a world figure, it is interesting to speculate, as does Mr. Sibley in his story, on what changes in our own history might have followed the advent here of this remarkable man.

New York Day by D
BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, July 19—A growing number of New Yorkers are definitely satiated with the metropolitan celebrity complex. Everywhere—theater, cafe or night-club—so-called celebrities must be introduced. They are phonies—the last minute rushers down theater aisles and self-pagers in hotel lobbies.

No other city indulges such fawning. Ninety per cent have done nothing to warrant such fervor. They may have had a brief flit of glory and a quick fadeout. That is all. The real celebrities are not flocking to public places to be admired. And sponge off the proprietor.

The nation's greatest celebrity—Col. Lindbergh—has not been seen in a public restaurant since attaining his deserved fame. His runner-up, Amelia Earhart, expresses a similar shyness. Disraeli once observed: "Self-exploitation is the camouflage of the egotist, fearing eclipse."

The look-at-me crop that arrives at opening nights with a great tarantara or sits in conspicuous boxes at the opera, baseball or at ring-side tables, are in most instances the show-offs. They have what is known among the Broadway curiosa as the "lucky break." And are hearty rather than significant.

In years of roaming around town I have never seen J. P. Morgan, Helen Gould Shepherd, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Edna St. Vincent Millay, King Lardner or other of the great philanthropists, financiers, artists or writers in any save inconspicuous places—and always expressing self-effacement.

The pandemonium of the past three years has increased a wholesome respect for humility. Many loud-mouths of the spotlight tommed only havoc to the world. It would almost seem the Biblical prophecy is being realized: "The meek shall inherit the earth."

Daily Talk to Pare
BY ALICE JUDSON PEALE

A GRUDGE.

A five-year-old girl astounded her mother by bursting out one day with the exclamation: "I think you are the meanest thing in the whole world!"

"Why, what have I done?"

"Well, you made Junior a boy, and even baby is a boy. But you let me be just a girl!"

Many a little girl holds this grudge against her mother. The feeling is to some extent unavoidable, for nearly every little girl feels envious of the little boys.

She feels herself to be inferior through no fault of her own and quite naturally fastens upon her mother as the cause of her inferiority.

Her resentment often is further augmented by the fact that she feels that mother prefers her brother to herself, and this favoritism she attributes to the fact that he is a boy while she is merely a girl.

Added to this, especially as she grows a bit older, is the fact that boys are allowed all sorts of freedom and appear generally as more important creatures than girls in the scheme of things.

VILLAGE FUNDS RUNNING LOW

Mt. Gilead Unable To Pay All Bills; Consider Special Levy Proposal.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, July 19—A number of claims against the village of Mt. Gilead have not been paid by Clerk H. D. Buxton because the money with which the money should be paid are exhausted, it was decided at council meeting last night.

Water and service funds are reported full, bills against them are paid in the balance. There is reported $5,600 in the gasoline tax fund but this cannot be used except for street repair and maintenance.

Bills totaling more than $1,000 were held up although they have been approved for payment, it may be necessary to borrow money in anticipation of the collection of taxes which will be made in September or to get a tax draw.

Council decided to submit a special levy for approval of the voters after some discussion. The present levy now in effect expires this year and some special levy will probably be submitted at the election. A number of councilmen favor a two mill levy instead of a three as they believe expenses can be pared down for next year.

JURY TO GET BURGLARY CASE

Witnesses Identify Goods Alleged To Have Been Stolen in Bucyrus.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, July 19—Thirty-six state's exhibits including many varieties of firearms, were identified by six witnesses who were called to testify Monday in the case of the State of Ohio against Clair Hill, former battery shop proprietor, charged with burglary and larceny of the Brinkman sporting goods store in April. The case is expected to go to the jury tomorrow.

Witnesses called Monday were David Trager, Columbus pawn broker's clerk; Joe Mode and Abe Mendel, Columbus pawn brokers, all of whom identified Hill as the "Ed Sharp" who pawned a number of firearms, alleged to have been those stolen from the Brinkman store. Ray C. Helsley, Cleveland detective, testified to having found certain articles alleged to have been taken in the burglary in the Hill car. Irvin Brinkman and Mrs. Irvin Brinkman identified the stolen articles.

Hill served notice last week that he will furnish an alibi showing that he was at his home at the time of the burglary.

BIBLICAL HISTORY PROVED BY SCIENCE

By United Press

PUEBLO, Col. Science has proved a Biblical theory.

Clarence R. Studinski, assistant city engineer, has completed a graph showing the weather cycles in the vicinity of Pueblo for a period of 50 years.

The graph was prepared from local weather records kept over that period by the bureau here.

It proves that, in Pueblo, at least, the weather runs in seven-year cycles as told in the Bible, written long before there were any weather men.

The graph revealed some unusual facts. July, usually thought of as a dry hot month, is the wettest. August is next. January is the driest month, and November the second.

The month of the great flood at Pueblo, June, 1921, a total of 7.14 inches of rain fell here.

Studinski's figures show that drouths occur at regular periods and on the basis of his graph, he believes 1938 will be a very dry year.

Beautician Gives Simple Rules for Shampooing Hair at Home

BY JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

SHAMPOOING the hair at home seems to be the one beauty routine that most women have difficulty in mastering. And, truth to tell there is no real reason at all why the home shampoo should be less satisfactory than one given by an operator in a beauty shop.

Those who have special mixtures for shampooing, required because of a hair or scalp condition, should find the home shampoo far more satisfactory than any other. It is much cheaper to give yourself special attention than it is to have special attention given to you!

A few basic rules govern correct shampooing. These apply even when the method has been worked out to correct hair or scalp problems.

If you will read the following suggestive carefully and then remember to follow them the next time you shampoo your hair at home, you will find that your previous trouble has been in not knowing just how wash your hair.

First of all, you should have a bath spray. This means only a few feet of rubber tubing with a spray cap for one end and a faucet cap for the other. These can be purchased, item by item, at any 10-cent store and will cost you about 30 or 40 cents. For very little more they can be purchased all assembled.

Brush Before Washing

Hair should be brushed before it is washed. Not only does the brushing remove lint and dust, but it stimulates circulation through the scalp. Two or three minutes brushing will be sufficient unless you have unusually long and thick hair.

The hair always should be wet thoroughly before applying the shampoo mixture.

After the shampoo has been rubbed through the hair to bring up a lather the hair should feel fine to the touch. If it feels harsh, the lather is not heavy enough, meaning you have not applied sufficient shampoo. Therefore pour a little more of the shampoo over the hair and lather it again.

Two latherings should be sufficient to cleanse any hair unless oil treatment has been given just before the shampoo.

Thorough rinsing ... so easy to accomplish and failure to do so usually being the main reason why the home shampoo goes wrong ... means spraying warm and then cool water through the hair until every trace of soap has been removed.

When all soap has been rinsed from the hair it will squeak when rubbed with the hands. I mean squeak, too, for that is exactly what it does. Until that faint squeaking sound is heard the hair has not been rinsed thoroughly.

Correct shampooing of the hair is as simple as it seems set down here. Plenty of whatever shampoo medium you use and thorough rinsing being the two major factors of success.

ly during the questioning. District attorney says the man was murdered in the course of "third-degree" proceedings.

The case is aggravated by the fact that the young prisoner, 20 years old, was accused of beating an old woman, mother of one of the policemen who assisted in the third degree, and who, part of the time, was alone with the prisoner.

It is not necessary to say anything about the extreme brutality of such a case.

What is more important to police is the fact that one case of this kind endangers the lives of many policemen and detectives. Criminals fearing such brutality would shoot to kill. Prisoners that have endured it have shot policemen in the past. The number of such shootings might increase. The London police, by their own choice, carry no revolvers. And criminals are rarely captured with deadly weapons because they are afraid to use them. In England if you shoot anybody you are hanged. CHAPTER NINE

Encounter in the Park

One of Mark's friends who had been lustily cheering and wav... his hat, came to Sondra.

"Can I give you a lift, Miss Kent?"

She started and turned.

"Thank you—I . . ."

Anderson spoke beside her.

"Miss Kent is coming with me."

Sondra walked by his side from the long fast-emptying pier.

She felt as if she had to force her feet to move—first one and then the other—one, two—one, two . . .

Outside, Anderston took her arm.

"Where shall we go, Sondra?"

"Anywhere—I haven't anywhere particular to go . . ."

"Would you care to drive round and then lunch with me?"

"Thank you."

Anything would be better than going back to Flora's or being left alone.

She leaned back in Anderson's big car with a sudden sense of bodily weakness.

It was all over—Mark had gone. Somehow until the very last she had thought that something would happen to keep him with her. A silly thought—for what could happen?

"Do you think Merriman is keen about his job?" Anderson asked.

"Yes . . . oh, yes, I think so. He's very lucky to have got it."

"I think he'll do well. I hope so."

The big car rolled on its way. Anderson turned into the park—he was driving himself and perhaps it was the traffic that engrossed his attention and kept him from looking at Sondra.

He said presently: "I rang you up last night, but Mrs. Lomax told me you were away."

"Yes." It was an effort to remember what she had told Flora. "Yest, I stayed the night with Beatrice. I came up this morning."

"I see; and how is Beatrice?"

"Very well."

They were driving through the park now. Anderson drew the big two-seater to one side of the drive and stopped the engine. "I wanted to see Cass if he is anywhere about."

Sondra roused herself and looked round.

"He rides every morning, doesn't he?" she said vaguely.

"As a rule, I believe."

"Why did you ring up last night?" she asked. She was not interested, but it was something to say.

"Only to tell you that I was writing to you. However, as you were not there, I didn't post the letter. I've got it with me."

She raised her eyes to his face.

"A letter?" she asked.

"Well—yes." He took an envelope from his pocket and laid it on her lap. "Don't open it now. Later on will do."

"Very well," Sondra said slowly, but she left the letter disregarded; she knew well enough what were its contents.

"Here is Cass," she said abruptly.

A man on horseback had come trotting up to them.

"Hullo you two!" He saluted in mock military fashion.

He was a quaint looking man, and he sat his horse badly.

He wore rather loud check riding breeches and a brown coat with a leather collar; his close-cropped head was hatless, and he smoked an enormous cigar.

A man who must have been on the wrong side of 50, he had a cherubic face and the smile of a boy.

Everybody who knew Cass loved him, and he was John Anderson's greatest friend.

Nobody quite knew why, for Cass was in a perpetual state of being broke, and he and Anderson had not a thought or taste in common apart from their mutual affection.

Unkind people said that Cass lived on his friend's bounty, but it was not the case. Cass had never been known to take a shilling from John Anderson, and Anderson knew better than to offer it.

How he lived and kept up the appearance he did was a mystery.

There were fantastic stories of a back room in some shabby street where Cass slept and ate and had his being, but as nobody had ever visited him there, nobody was in an exact position to verify the stories, and Cass kept his own counsel.

Whenever he appeared in public he was smart and well groomed, if a trifle loud in his choice of clothes; he gambled reckless when he had anything to gamble with, and enjoyed life no matter what it offered him, good or bad, cheerfully robbing Peter to pay Paul.

His real name was Stephen Cassidy, but he was known to every one as Cass, and even his enemies credited him with being the owner of the kindest heart and the most tolerant soul in the world.

Sondra liked him, though she did not know why—and she trusted him, too.

"Well, fair lady—and how have you managed to drag John out at this early hour of the morning?" he demanded, with his boy's smile.

Anderson answered for her.

"We've been down to see young Merriman off."

"Oh!— so he's really gone, has he?" Cass raised his brows. "Never thought he would somehow," he said thoughtfully.

"Why not?" Anderson asked; there was a sharp note in his voice.

Cass shrugged his padded shoulders.

"Don't know, dear boy—can't explain—never can explain anything. I just thought it, that's all. Grand morning isn't it?"

He addressed Sondra, but she seemed unaware of it, and Cass filled in the following silence with a little snatch of song—

"He told her he loved her, but, oh—how he lied!

"Oh, how he lied! Oh, how he lied! . . ." he broke off as suddenly as he had commenced to say, "By Jove—that girl's got a fine figure. . . . Excuse me, it's worth following."

And he trotted off again before either of them could speak, riding about as badly as a man can ride.

Sondra laughed as she looked after him.

"I never knew anyone so persistently cheerful," she said.

"He'll break his neck before he's ... recovered."

"No—it doesn't matter, I know where I can find him later on."

She said with attempted interest: "I often wonder why you two are such friends."

Anderson smiled. "I've often wondered myself; we've known each other a great many years; perhaps that's the explanation."

"Is it? I shouldn't think so. There are lots of people I've known all my life and still cannot tolerate."

"But your life has not been half the length of mine," he reminded her whimsically.

She sighed. "Sometimes I feel as old as Methuselah."

"Only when your head aches and you want your lunch," he answered. "I am sure your head does ache, Sondra."

"Oughtn't I to be the best judge of that?" she demanded a little querulously.

"I beg your pardon."

She was conscious of a faint uneasiness. John seemed different. Somewhat this morning—almost like a stranger—or was it that she herself was so vitally changed?

Sam Brixton Starts on Another Mysterious Night Errand Alone.

I DREW Ronald quickly inside my door and closed it.

"Steady, lad!" I said, for he was shaking perceptibly. "Your stepfather has gone, you say. When?"

"Just now." He put his hand on the door knob. "He thought I was asleep. Mother is, really, but I pretended, when I saw him coming over to the couch where I was lying. He stood over me a long time watching, but finally he was satisfied, then he put his revolver in his pocket, pulled a heavy sweater on and put a golf cap on his head. He hasn't any top coat, and he has heavy walking boots on. He looks as if he were going to tramp the hills. I must see where he goes."

He had turned the knob when my hand closed over his.

A Message from Noel

"Wait!" I breathed. "If he's taken all those precautions he'll wait before starting out until he's sure he's not being followed. You mustn't go downstairs yet. Noel is sitting at the side of the lobby, effectually concealed by a chair, but you may be sure he'll spot your stepfather when he passes. We'll have some word from Noel before another minute or two, I am sure."

As if in fulfillment of my prophecy the telephone shrilled and I dashed to it, Ronald close at my heels.

"Mrs. Graham!" The voice of the night clerk was suave, but I detected an undercurrent of excited curiosity in it. "Mr. Veritzen asks that you come down to the little sitting room back of the lobby right away; but he asks that you come by those side stairs. He said you'd understand."

"I'll be right down," I said, and dashing to my closet I hauled out my motor coat, a close-fitting hat and a pair of heavy walking shoes that I had put in for emergency.

"Go on down first," I told Ronald. "I'll speak to Mrs. Underwood, and be with you in a few seconds. Tell Noel so, if you see him."

"What the ——?" Lillian began, when I entered unceremoniously. "What's happened?"

I told her, quickly, and she nodded.

"I ought to go," she said, "but I see. I can manage Helena if she wakens, and nobody else can do that little thing. But here! Take this!" She pushed something small and cold into my hand. "And don't be squeamish about using it," she added.

"Good Hunting!"

I put the little silencer pistol into the pocket of my motor coat, which I had donned on the way from my room, and kicking off my shoes I hurriedly put on the heavier ones.

"Till I see you," I murmured, and she raised her hand as if in salute.

"Good hunting!" She whispered the toast with shining eyes, and I hurried softly away, leaving her to close the door noiselessly behind me.

At the foot of the side stairs I found Ronald, holding out a note to me.

"The night clerk said Noel wanted you to have this immediately, so I said I'd bring it up to you," he whispered.

"Come in here," I murmured, and stood in front of me.

He followed me into the darkened little sitting room, and I read the hastily scribbled note with the aid of my pocket flashlight:

"B standing front porch smoking, watching. Think will travel as soon as he thinks safe. Am behind lilac bush at side. Do you want me trail him? N."

I stood still for a minute, then turned to Ronald.

"Ask the night clerk to lend you an old cap and sweater, the most disreputable he can find," I directed. "Also beg, borrow, buy or steal a bicycle for me; then slip out to Noel and tell him you and I are to trail Brixton and that I want him to stay here on guard. But if Brixton starts before I come down—which will be, say, three minutes—both of you trail him, and when you are sure of his road have Noel cut back to me with the direction, while you keep on after him. I'll catch up to you."

I rant lightly up the stairs at my final word, and going into my own room took from my bag a pair of knickers that I had put in on the chance that I might have some such emergency as the one confronting me. A pair of Dicky's golf hose that have shrunk beyond his wearing also came out.

I looked in Dicky's bag for a cap and fitted it snugly to my head. My coat fortunately, was masculine looking. I gave myself a parting glimpse in the mirror as I hurried out.

But when I stole down to the lilac bush at the side of the house, there was no one waiting for me.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, July 20

A RATHER curious and perplexing state of affairs is presaged from the lunar transits holding away on this day. There is sign of intriguing situations in business, with writings, and in connection with negotiations or propositions from mergers, rings or secret bodies. There may be an underhand move designed to thwart the assistance or preferment of those in places of position or power. Be careful with all writings and be on guard against duplicity. The personal affairs should be very active, flourishing and pleasant.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the alert for a year of singular, intriguing or perplexing development of the affairs, especially with a tinge of subtlety, stratagem or subterfuge. Be on guard against treachery, schemes and sign all papers cautiously. A child born on this day may be steadfast and industrious, although inclined to be romantic, idealistic and sociable.

Four-Day Short Ship Race Meet To Start Here July 2

CLASSY PROGRAM OF RACING PLANNED BY MARION DRIVING CLUB

Over 200 Horses Expected at North Side Oval; Events at Night.

Everything is in readiness for Marion's annual Short Ship harness race meeting, scheduled for the fairground oval from July 26 to 29. Races will be run on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. No afternoon racing will be held.

From all indications the Marion Driving club is going to put on another of those meetings which have been looked on for several years as among the best, if not the best, of any staged on a central Ohio half mile track. Coming directly after the big Grand Circuit meeting at Toledo, the Short Ship meeting here is almost certain to draw well over 200 of the outstanding trotters and pacers of the country. Approximately 210 were quartered at the North side oval during the last meeting here and the meeting was generally conceded to be the best ever held here. Seventy-five are already at the Marion track.

With such noted stables as those of Sep Palm, Homer Walter, Doc Parshall, Doc McMillen, Gabe Cardinal Clair Wolverton, Wirt Mullow and others of equal prominence, four nights of sensational racing are assured. It will be a meeting where class will predominate and driving club officials are already predicting that several records will be shattered ere the final heat of the last race is run.

On two of the four nights three events have been carded. On the other two four will be run off. Races have been arranged for all classes of horses. Several feature races have been arranged. Among the features will be the free-for-all pace, the big feature of the week, to be raced on Thursday night, while the feature on Wednesday night will be the free-for-all trot. Both of these events will draw to the post some of the fastest horses in the circuit.

Racing each night is scheduled to start at 8 p. m. Steve Phillips, well-known starter of Xenia, O., will serve as starting judge. Phillips has been official starter here for the last several meetings. A. H. Pendleton of Chicago, nationally known official, will serve as presiding judge.

The complete schedule for the four days follows:

Tuesday: 24 pace, 16 trot and claiming pace.

Wednesday: 24 trot; 14 pace; free-for-all trot and claiming trot.

Thursday: Three-year-old trot; free-for-all pace; 14 trot and 20 pace.

Friday: 20 trot; 17 pace; three-year-old pace and mile and one-quarter handicap dash.

Christians, Epworth Seniors Chalk Up Victories; St. Paul, Reformed Also Finish on Top.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

The Christian Seniors and Epworth Seniors might well pay a rising vote of thanks to the First Reformed Sunday school softball team. The Reformed nine yesterday racked up a 6-2 victory over Forest Lawn Presbyterians and virtually eliminated the East side combine as a contender for the championship. A victory yesterday for Forest Lawn would have done little more than keep them in the position as a possible long shot for the crown. The defeat definitely blasted any title hopes.

The Christian and Epworth Seniors continued their virtual deadlock for first place, both teams recording victories. The Christian Seniors scored a 6-5 win over the Christian No. 1 team and Epworth took Wesley M. E. into camp by a 7-3 score. However, the city softball commission will get a chance tonight to decide if the game between the two Christian teams be allowed to stand or be called "no contest" and ordered played over. In the fourth game yesterday St. Paul Lutheran shoved the United Brethren into the league cellar by taking a 5-2 decision.

Won In Eighth

The Christian Seniors and Christian No. 1 teams put on a nip and tuck battle for six innings and then the Seniors came through with a tally in the eighth that captured the game by a one-run margin.

Wesley M. E. permitted the Epworth Seniors to get off to a big lead in the first inning and as a result were never able to catch the fleeting uptown Methodists as a result. Steve Marquis banged a homer in this frame with the sacks clogged for four runs and those four proved sufficient to win the ball game. Bryant Corwin held the Wesley batters well in check, especially after the four inning Wesley failed to get as much as a hit in the last three frames.

First Reformed dug up another pitcher, Creasap, yesterday and proceeded to hang a 6-2 beating on Forest Lawn. Creasap held the Easters to five hits and was never in danger at any time. Johnny Vestal started for Forest Lawn but was blasted from the hill and replaced by Mutt Kellogg. Kellogg got along better but the damage was done. Two big innings provided all the runs for Reformed, three coming in both the fourth and the fifth.

U. B. In Cellar

St. Paul Lutherans forced the United Brethren to trade places and go into last place by taking a 5-2 decision. Don Lindsey was the complete master of the U. B. batters while on the hill and also contributed a pair of runs to his own cause. Three free passes and only one long fly accounted for one of the U. B. tallies.

TOLAN, SIMPSON AND METCALFE STRONGER LINEUP THAN IN '28

Scholz and Paddock Last Sprinters To Compare with Present Trio.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, July 19—The American midlands, which produced the last American Olympic sprint victor eight years ago in Jackson Scholz of Missouri, has come forward with a trio of brilliant dash men for the fight to regain lost prestige on the international speedways.

Lawson Robertson, the American head coach, regards Ralph Metcalfe, Eddie Tolan and George Simpson as the best and most consistent sprinting combination the United States has had for the Olympics since Scholz and Charley Paddock were in their prime. Certainly it is a much stronger lineup than in 1928 when only three of more than eight reached the finals. All trailed Percy Williams of Canada.

Through such bitter Olympic setbacks, America has learned not to be over-confident of its sprint talent. Consistency has not been its crowning jewel. Most of the 100-meter discussion revolved around whether Frank Wykoff or Emmett Toppino would romp off with the main honors, yet these two aces failed to turn up among the first three in the final. They were clearly outraced by a trio possessing class and experience. The main question will be whether Metcalfe, Tolan and Simpson can stand the grind, inasmuch as they all must do double duty.

Metcalfe, powerful Negro youth weighing 175 pounds, is the youngest of the trio and looms as the chief American contender. It took his sensational double victory in the final trials, however, to convince coaches who were somewhat skeptical of the times recorded by the big Marquette sophomore in the mid-western Olympic tryouts.

Tolan and Simpson, although also on the team for the first time have six years of big league competition behind them, going back to the days when they were Big Ten rivals of Michigan and Ohio State. Simpson broke in the 1928 trials, while going great guns. His come back is all the more remarkable because he has not had much competition in the last year or two. Tolan, meanwhile, has covered a wide field of competition.

Williams will be at Los Angeles to defend the Olympic crowns. The slim Canadian has not had much competition within the last year but the best information concerning him is that he is back in form and will be hard to beat.

The 100-meters, in which American coaches regard Jonath of Germany as outstanding, will be the toughest for the home forces to capture.

LINEUPS NAMED FOR WEDNESDAY CONTEST

Marion Travelers To Use Regular Lineup Against Homestead Grays.

Chuck Skelly, manager of the Marion Travelers, who will oppose the Homestead Grays' baseball team here Wednesday afternoon at 5:30 p. m. at Lincoln park, has named his starting lineup. Skelly will use practically the same team which has been winning the majority of its games on the road this season.

Before the game the Travelers will put on an exhibition of shadow ball. The Grays will be on hand early enough to entertain the fans with throwing and other exhibitions during the warmup period prior to the game. City busses will leave the courthouse at 5 p. m. for the park.

STARS IN JAPAN'S STRONG OLYMPIC TEAM

Japan this year will present the most powerful band of athletes ever sent from the "land of the rising sun" to the Olympics. Above is a quartet of outstanding stars who will compete in the international games July 30 to Aug. 15 in Los Angeles: Mikkio Oda (left), world's record holder in the hop, skip and jump; S. Nishida, pole-vaulter; Y. Nagao, hammer thrower with a mark of 149 feet, and Katsuo Takaishi (right), captain of the swimming team.

MINNEAPOLIS PUSHES AHEAD IN RACE FOR ASSOCIATION FLAG

Columbus Captures Third Game in Row Since Return to Form.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 19—With a little cooperation from St. Paul, Minneapolis was another half a game ahead of Indianapolis in the American Association championship race.

St. Paul has been in last place most of the season, and only lately has started to show improvement, but the Saints have managed on numerous occasions to knock off close rivals of the Millers, when the latter lost.

While Minneapolis was splitting a doubleheader with Louisville yesterday, St. Paul staged a strong finish to defeat Indianapolis, Minneapolis' nearest threat for the lead. The division of spoils for the day increased the Miller lead to five and one-half games.

Minneapolis slashed Ken Penner for six hits and five runs in the first inning of the first game for a 7 to 3 decision. Penner gave only three hits after the bad first frame. The Colonels did some rousing hitting to win the second game, 12 to 5. Louisville clipped Ad Liska, Hi Vandenberg and Phil Hensick for 17 hits, including a home run by Dud Branom.

Columbus won its third straight by outlasting Milwaukee for a 9 to 8 decision. The Birds scored four runs in the ninth inning, but Milwaukee matched the output in its half, and had the tieing run on base with one out. Koehler and Tavener, however, could not produce the necessary punch. Bill Lee hurled well for Columbus until the Brewers battered him out of action in the ninth, Paul Dean finishing.

Kansas City subdued Toledo, 6 to 3, in a night game.

BERG GETS DECISION OVER KID CHOCOLATE

Unpopular Verdict Given British Battler; 20,000 on Hand for Fight.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 19—Kid Chocolate, the glistening Cuban Negro, was further than ever today from his most cherished dream, the lightweight championship.

The "keed's" latest comeback attempt was halted last night by Jackie (Kid) Berg, Briton, who received the decision after 15 rounds before 20,000 fans at the garden bowl. It was Berg's second victory over the Cuban flash.

The justice of that first decision two years ago has been the subject of much dispute, and there were indications today that Berg's latest victory would bring similar arguments. The verdict was given a sound razzing by the spectators.

The referee and one judge cast their votes for Berg, the other official thought Chocolate had turned the tables on his old nemesis. The Associated Press score sheet credited the Cuban with seven rounds to Berg's six.

1,700 See Ashby Pinned by Vangler in Mat Bout

Sammy Vangler, that little Jewish boy from Parkersburg, W. Va. who has been doing an awful lot of fighting in Marion's wrestling arena, slugged his way to another victory before more than 1700 fans last night when he defeated Spike Ashby, the knuckler from Chicago.

Vangler punched Ashby all over the ring but the Chicagoan was able to take it until the closing fall at the match. After Vangler was declared the winner, the boys decided to wipe the slate clean and start all over. The referee attempted to separate them but a few punches to the head made him change his mind. Patrolman Bert Powell separated them for a few seconds while fans were yelling "let em go." They tangled again and the encore ended in a draw when Clete Kauffman took a hand in events.

Vangler started the match in his usual right and left swing fashion. It looked like Ashby wouldn't last long enough to make it interesting. The Windy city boy came back and the first fall didn't end for 35 minutes when Vangler countered a reverse full nelson with a reverse back slam.

Ashby took the second fall in nine and a half minutes with a body slam and Vangler won the third in 13½ minutes. Ashby gave an exhibition of new holds and he was constantly tying Vangler in knots. He was the better wrestler but Vangler's punches were too much.

The winner, according to promoters, will be featured in next week's main go card against Robin Reed.

Nick Bozinis had no trouble disposing of Cleve Welch in straight falls. He won the first in 13½ minutes with a great spin and a slam while the second lasted but six and one-half minutes when Bozinis applied a series of flying holds.

The preliminary was the best match on the program from the standpoint of wrestling. Claude Swindell of Columbus pinned Chuck Nelson of Pittsburgh in 18 minutes with a shortarm scissors.

STOCKS GIVEN STEADY TONE

Haphazard Speculation by Floor Traders Imparts Semblance of Activity.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 19—Haphazard speculation by floor traders gave the stock market a semblance of activity today, as the list shook off yesterday's setback. A somewhat better tone in primary commodities, notably wheat, was encouraging, but buying power in the share market was rather limited and prices with few exceptions made scant progress.

Public encouragement from the outset was lacking, although prices were well maintained. The list managed to push up fractions in the late morning, dipped Monday, and stiffen again in the early afternoon. Tobaccos were pushed forward, gains of around a point appearing in American Tobacco B, Reynolds B, and Liggett B. Unification developments served to give the New York Central a boost, Brooklyn Manhattan gaining up nearly 3 points. Utilities were selling in DuPont issues have dried up, and that improved fractionally. Slight gains appeared in such issues as American Telephone, American Can, Allied Chemical, Coca Cola, Consolidated Gas, Santa Fe and Union Pacific. U. S. Steel was fairly steady. Public Service of N. J. won a soft spot, losing more than a point, before meeting support. General Foods dropped a fraction, and Homestake around a couple of points.

Traders were somewhat disappointed at the quick exhaustion of buying power during last week's rally and at the way the list backed off under light selling in lyesterday's session. On the other hand, there seemed to be little selling pressure hanging over the market at current levels. While some commentators though the old lows, as touched on July 8, might be due for another testing, there was nothing in the days developments to indicate an immediate return to those levels.

GRAINS AIDED BY HEAT WAVE

Soaring Mercury Gives Strength to Quotations on Chicago Market.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 19—Reports of high temperatures and need of rain in domestic spring wheat territory tended to impart comparative strength to grain values early today. There were also further advices of crop deterioration in southern Saskatchewan. Opening unchanged to ⅛ higher, wheat afterward advanced all around. Corn started unchanged to ¼ up and subsequently held near the initial limits.

Excessive heat both sides of the Canadian border threatened material damage to spring wheat. The crop in that region has reached the milk or drouth stage, a period of development where harm to quantity and quality would perhaps be sudden and serious. Meanwhile, a continuation of the heat wave over the entire west and northwest appeared likely and prices rose a cent or more a bushel.

The fact that wheat had previously scored the lowest prices on record was an evident factor in deterring sellers, and although buying power remained subnormal, a better undertone developd. Helping the market further were cable estimates that the combined wheat crops of France, Germany, Greece, Belgium and Holland this year would total 534,000,000 bushels, compared with 458,000,000 last year. It was also asserted that the bumper wheat prospect in southern Saskatchewan had been reduced 10 to 30 percent. Corn and oats were bullishly affected by reports of dry hot weather.

Provisions sagged with hog values.

AS AUTO OUTSPED GOLF BALL

This interesting experiment pictured here took place at Detroit, Mich., recently, when it was proved that an automobile can beat the speed of a golf ball—even though the ball be driven by a champion. Gene Sarazen, king of the golf world, is shown hitting the pill from an even start with a racing auto, driven by Colonel J. G. Vincent. The car reached the spot where the ball landed four-tenths of a second in the lead.

COMMA COSTS U. S. MILLIONS

Error Changes Meaning of Law Placing Tax on Oleomargarine.

By International News Service

DENVER—An obscure government clerk failed to insert a comma in the proper place in the oleomargarine act 46 years ago.

As a result, the federal government has lost $2,000,000 in the last two months, according to internal revenue officials here.

"In school I was taught the value of proper punctuation," an internal revenue official declared "but the lesson was never brought home to me more forcefully than by the mistake made by that clerk."

To add to the government's embarrassment, the discovery of the missing comma was made just at a time when two million dollars could be used to good advantage in these dollar-counting days of balancing the federal budget.

In defining compounds taxable under the socalled oleomargarine act, congress intended to include imitation butter made with vegetable oils.

Annotto is one of many substances made of vegetable oil and used in imitation butter. In drawing the act, it was intended to insert a comma after the words "vegetable oil" and before "annotto," but the clerk entrusted with copying the bill made a mistake that was unnoticed until a year or so ago. He left out the comma.

The error was brought to light when the Southern Nut Product Co. brought an injunction suit in the federal district court of Florida to restrain the government from taxing an imitation butter at 10 cents a pound as fixed in the oleomargarine act.

In scrutinizing the act, the presiding federal district judge noticed the omitted comma and ruled the Southern Nut Product Co. was exempt from paying tax.

"Obviously," the court ruled, "the words 'vegetable oil' qualify the word 'annotto.' It might be safe to assume otherwise except that a hyphen was inserted before 'vegetable' and 'oil' and for the further reason that the words 'vegetable oil' perfectly describe 'annotto.' We can not go back of the punctuation as used in the act and it would hardly be proper for the court to correct the punctuation of Congress. We merely can interpret the act as it was drawn, assuming that if a comma was left out it was omitted for good cause."

The United States supreme court sustained the ruling of the district court.

As a result the federal government was required to refund all taxes collected on imitation butter exempted from tax under the ruling of the courts. A provision in the federal law stipulating that federal taxes are not subject to refund for more than four years prior to the date of claim saved the government further losses.

"If it weren't for that law," said a Denver official of the internal revenue bureau, "the federal government would have had to refund a staggering sum. As it is, the government has lost a tidy sum because of what appeared at the time to be an innocuous error."

OFF FOR TREASURE RAID ON DAVEY JONES

Twenty-one years ago the liner Merida (lower panel) went to Davey Jones' locker off Cape Henry, Va., carrying a cargo of $6,000,000 in gold and, it is believed, the crown jewels of the Emperor Maximilian of Mexico to the bottom. In this era of depression that amount of treasure would come in mighty handy, so Captain Harry L. Bowdoin of New York, with a crew of 24 is going in search of it. The treasure seekers are shown above, and at right is one of the ultra-modern diving suits which will be used by the salvagers.

COUNCILMAN WOULD BAN MARATHONS

Kansas City Official Proposes Bill To Halt Endurance Contests.

By United Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Marathons may be all right in their place, but Kansas City is not their place, holds Charles H. Clark, member of the city council.

He introduced in the council an ordinance to empower the director of health regulate such contests and prohibit the contests from lasting more than 12 hours a day.

The action was interpreted as a revival of the spirit which led the country unsuccessfully to try to halt a "walkathon" of some four months duration.

The measure requires:

That any person, firm or corporation promoting a bicycle race, walking, dancing, speed or endurance contest furnish the city director of health information concerning the nature and purpose of such contest.

That a permit must be obtained from the director of health.

That each participant submit to a physical examination.

It would make it a misdemeanor to promote a contest of more than 12 hours duration. Flagpole sitting is not specifically mentioned.

An automatic fire extinguisher that sprays all parts of an airplane when its temperature rises to a danger point has been invented in France.
